Russian food prices higher than ever

Associated Press

MOSCOW — Six months into Russia's free-market reforms, Russians have failed to keep pace with the soaring cost of basic food and consumer items, forcing many Russians to change their eating and shopping habits.

At the same time, the availability of scarce goods has improved, primarily due to their soaring cost, according to an Associated Press survey.

Russian President Boris Yeltsin

launched his reforms Jan. 2, lifting price controls on all but the most basic foods and goods in order to end decades of state subsidies and bring prices in line with their real value.

When Yeltsin raised prices, the Associated Press began tracking the cost of 15 everyday items in Moscow stores. Six months later, the cost of filling the "Moscow Marketbasket" had shot up 787 percent. The average Russian salary rose 103 percent — from 960 to 1,950 rubles per month.

In addition to changing their habits, many Russians also hoarded food to see them through the winter. Pensioners, veterans and others on fixed incomes relied heavily on traditional networks of friends and family for help.

Shoplifting also increased, forcing many stores to end self-service.

Russians are being forced to spend more and more of their salary on food. A survey of 1,631 Russians in May by the Russian Center for Public Opinion and Market Research found that 66 percent of respondents said they were spending almost all of their salary on food, compared with 55 percent in February. The poll had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent.

The AP surveyed seven state-run stores in central Moscow and a private farmer's market for the prices of sausage, chicken, butter, macaroni, white bread, sugar, milk, fresh fish, women's, men's and children's shoes, pantyhose, skirts and cigarettes. The price of gasoline was checked at various filling stations around town. Sugar, which rose the most, increased 2,733 percent.

Women's center proposal to go to Student Life

By TAD R. WALCH
Campus Editor

A proposal that would allocate personnel and resources from the Counseling and Development Center for a Women's Resource Center will be sent to the dean of Student Life today for her approval, possibly a big step towards the realization of a long-time goal of several campus women's groups.

CDC Director David Sorenson said a committee within the CDC offered "an awful lot of input" in a meeting Wednesday morning and the proposal the committee had been working on was revised during the afternoon.

Sorenson said the proposal will go Thursday to Maren Mouritsen, the dean of Student Life, who oversees the CDC.

Sorenson said the proposal doesn't mean the creation of a Women's Resource Center is a sure thing, but he is optimistic.

"Some may think it's a done deal because it's come so far, but some approval still needs to be given," problem.

Gail Houston, an assistant professor of English, said she was pleased to learn of the CDC's proposal. Houston is part of a coalition of women's groups which came together in January because they felt many women's needs were not being met.

Houston said the coalition includes the groups Women in Management, Women in Science, VOICE, Women in Engineering, the Women's Law Forum and several individual faculty, staff and students.

The coalition came up with a proposal for a women's resource center and gave it to Student Life Vice President R.J. Snow at the end of January.

"President Lee responded not only to us but other voices and formed a task force to ascertain the needs of women" in the BYU community, Houston said.

The task force, chaired by Snow, met for eight weeks and came up with a 10-page proposal and gave it to President Lee in March.

"It was made clear they appreciated our work," Houston said, "but the financial forecast had been decided last fall and we would have to wait until next fall."

President Lee attended the final meeting of the task force and mentioned it would be a good idea to set up

Yeltsin, Bush agree to reduce warheads

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush and Russian leader Boris N. Yeltsin signed a landmark arms reduction agreement Wednesday and pledged to "put behind us for good the sad and too often tragic legacy of the Cold War."

The White House signing ceremony climaxed a two-day summit which placed the political and economic relationship between the two countries on a basis of friendship after a nuclear-armed generation of global tension.

Yeltsin said that with the end of the Cold War, nuclear weapons "turned out to be obsolete and unnecessary to mankind. And it is now simply a matter of calculating the best way and the best schedule for destroying them and getting rid of them."

Earlier Yeltsin appealed to a joint session of Congress for action on the $24 billion Western aid package.

During the news conference he stressed another theme of his visit: $24 billion will not save Russia, but it will open the door to hundreds of billions in private investment needed to revive the Russian economy. The money given in aid would be a vital first move.

Bush and Yeltsin made a joint appearance Wednesday morning before a group of corporate executives. Bush urged them to invest heavily in Russia's fledgling democracy. "I hope that businessmen in America will not be late to the table, and that they will be able to tap the enormous potential of our country," Yeltsin said.

Declaring that Russia has "slowed down the flywheel of militarization," Yeltsin said Russia would not wait until the still unratified START treaty takes effect before deactivating its SS-18 missiles. The multiple-warhead weapon is regarded as the most dangerous element of the Russian arsenal.

Blunting asking Congress to approve the aid legislation, Yeltsin said he hoped Congress would remain true as "the staunch advocate of freedom."

Setting high stakes for the success of his crusade, Yeltsin said, "Today the freedom of America is being upheld in Russia. Should the reforms fail, it will cost hundreds of billions to upset that failure."

Seeking to assure Congress about Russia's direction, Yeltsin said communism was dead, and "we shall not let it rise again in our land."

Committing his nation to the path of reform, Yeltsin said, "We have no right to fail in this most difficult endeavor, for there will be no second try as in sports."

Audiovisual Services test campus PA systems today

By BRENT W. PACKER
Universe Staff Writer

BYU Audiovisual Services will be conducting an emergency test of the campus paging systems today.

Don Roberts, of the Electronic Media Department, said the test will begin at 1 p.m. and will last for a maximum of 15 minutes.

Aimee Ross, public relations assistant for Media Services, said that during the last three years BYU has been remodeling and upgrading its facilities.

"During that time, whenever an office would be remodeled, the public address system would be upgraded," Ross said. She said the upgrading project on campus is scheduled to take place over an eight year period and is 35 percent completed.

"This will be the first time the paging system will be tested campus-wide," Ross said.

When the test is in progress, departments will be able to tell if their system has been upgraded, Ross said.

Former business bytes' Ross Perot

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A lucrative government contract to Ross Perot's computer firm was abruptly canceled in 1986, and congressional auditors concluded the government had "properly favored" the company, an Associated Press review shows.

The audit concluded Electronic Data Systems was wrongly allowed to offer its offer by $25 million by making alleged corrections after final bids had been submitted, and an Army or increased the scores technical evaluators had given to the EDS system.

The "highly questionable" action allowed EDS to move up from among the least desirable bidders to win the Army printing contract with the highest technical score and best priced considerations," an investigator told Congress.

The incident was costly; the government was forced to pay $10.95 million to reimburse the contractors, including $5 million to Perot's company. Perot sued claiming its contract had been unfairly terminated.

The congressional inquiry also raised questions about a possible conflict of interest in the role of an Army civilian who was found to be seeking a job with EDS during the procurement. A subsequent inspector general's investigation into possible criminal wrongdoing was hampered by a decision to downgrade the probe to an audit "so this wouldn't be an embarrassment," a source close to the case said.

"The investigation clearly disclosed improprieties that warranted presentation to the U.S. attorney's office, but it never materialized," the source said, speaking on condition he not be identified. No criminal charges or disciplinary actions were taken. The inspector general's probe ultimately blamed the situation on the inexperience of the government employees involved.

Perot sold EDS to General Motors but was still serving as its top executive. He left the company later that year after he was ousted from GM's board of directors. His name was not mentioned in the audit.

International students find admissions process difficult

By LISA L. SCHEMP
Universe Staff Writer

The world may be our campus at BYU, but some international students may never be able to set foot here. Due to financial restrictions and difficult exams to pass, foreign students often miss out on opportunities to come to BYU.

Ted Lyon, chair of European Studies, said many people wishing to attend BYU cannot get accepted because of an "unfairly high" requirement for the TOEFL exam.

The TOEFL is an exam foreign students must pass to prove their English skills before being admitted to BYU.

Every student must score at least 500 points on the TOEFL to be considered for admission to BYU.

"It is very, very difficult to get a 500 on TOEFL. It's not an easy exam by any means," Lyon said.

According to the International Student Office, out of the 1800 foreign students who attended BYU last semester, fewer than 1300 actually came from non-English speaking countries. The single largest group of foreign BYU students come from Canada.

Those students who are struggling to score high enough on the TOEFL to qualify for entrance to BYU can receive some help from the English Language Center, an intensive English study program offered by BYU in one- and two-semester long sessions. However, a student must still pay full tuition in order to take the class, even though they haven't yet been accepted to BYU.

Either way, it means money. On the application for admission for the foreign students, they must prove they have enough money per year to support themselves and their education in the United States. If they can't support themselves, they must show they have a sponsor, said Lisa Muranaka, an employee in the International Admissions Office.

Foreign LDS students must have access to at least $8,220 per year, and $9,280 is required for non-LDS students. This includes the requirements for student visas and immigration purposes. Sponsors, the other alternative for financial help, often involve family, friends or companies willing to support the student, Muranaka said.

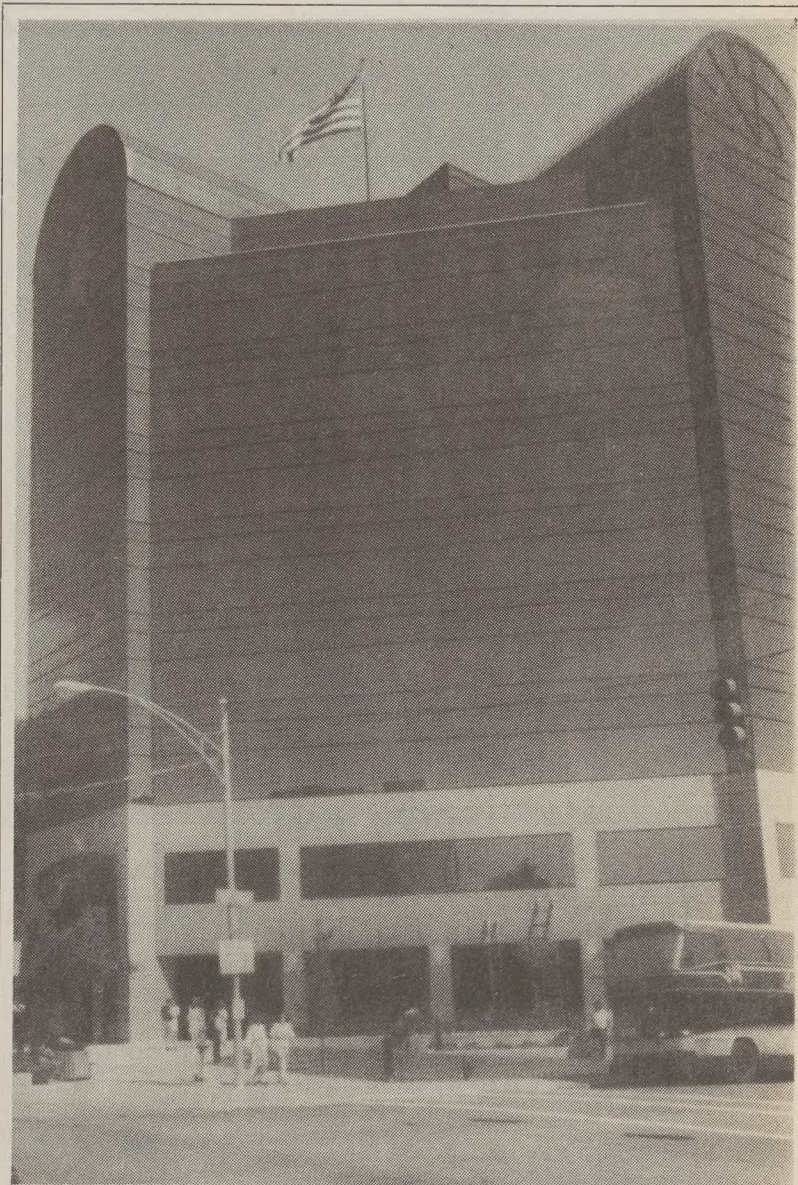

Problems result if the student cannot obtain a sponsor or the money. Muranaka said scholarships are available, but to be eligible, the student must already be accepted to BYU, meaning he or she had already passed the TOEFL examination.

However, to be accepted to BYU, the student had to already meet the financial requirements on the application.

"I am worried," Lyon said, "that what we are mainly looking at internationally is the children of wealthy families, which hardly represents how the Church is developing overseas. The average eager foreign student usually doesn't have a wealthy sponsor living in America."

Study says implants not tied to cancer

BOSTON — A major study found that women who have their breasts enlarged with implants face no unusual risk of breast cancer, providing new support for those who oppose a federal ban on the procedure.

The study, conducted by the Alberta Cancer Board in Edmonton, Alberta, found that women getting implants actually appeared to have only about half the cases of breast cancer as would have been expected in the following decade.

Researchers cautioned there is no reason to think implants might somehow reduce the risk of this common cancer.

The study is the second to challenge the assertion that breast implants might increase the risk of cancer. That fear was cited among other concerns before the recent federal decision to ban most breast implants.

That action was sharply criticized in two separate reports published with the latest study in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine. Also in the issue, the head of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration defended the decision, calling it one of the most controversial in the agency's history.

In April a study conducted at the University of Southern California found that women getting implants to increase their breast size had about one-third less breast cancer than expected during 10 years of follow up.

"Both of these studies are reassuring to women," said Dr. Hans Berkel, who directed the Canadian study. "We don't find an increased risk."

Barr dodges criticism of anti-Nazi effort

WASHINGTON — Attorney General William P. Barr delivered a strong vote of confidence Wednesday in the Justice Department's Nazi hunters, just days after the hunters admitted misplacing evidence that might have helped John Demjanjuk avoid conviction as concentration camp guard "Ivan the Terrible."

Barr deliberately separated himself from a rising tide of criticism and questions directed at the 38 lawyers, historians, investigators and support workers who man the Office of Special Investigations, which tracks down Nazi war criminals in this country.

In a 90-minute, off-the-record exchange with The Associated Press, the only point Barr made "on the record" was that the Nazi investigators "have an important task to do and it has to be continued. ... I have confidence in that office."

He would not discuss the case itself because it is being reviewed by Israel's Supreme Court, where Demjanjuk is challenging his death sentence.

Top 10 'bad dad' list includes Utah man

SALT LAKE CITY — A Utah man who owes $20,640 in back child support has been put on a national list of the 10 most-wanted deadbeat dads.

Michael Madigan Tracy, a former resident of West Valley City whose whereabouts are unknown, has paid only $760 in child support since 1984, authorities said.

He has been charged in Utah with criminal nonsupport and a warrant has been issued for his arrest. State officials said Tracy obtained a Nevada driver license last year, but he no longer resides at the address on the license.

The most-wanted list was compiled by the National Council of State Child Support Enforcement Administrators. The council asked each state for a candidate.

California's nominee, Roger Ernest Dunbar, led the list with $339,000 owing. Lemuel Hawsey, Louisiana, was second with arrears of $123,200.

Tracy was selected because he best met two of the council's requirements: he is missing and is being criminally prosecuted.

U.S. won't reimburse looted Panamanians

RICHMOND, Va. — The United States owes no damages to Panamanian businesses looted after the 1989 U.S. military invasion, a federal appeals court panel said Wednesday.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the United States did not violate a 1907 international treaty on land warfare when its troops failed to prevent the looting by mobs.

The three-judge panel unanimously upheld the dismissal of the lawsuit last September by U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr., of Alexandria.

A similar lawsuit has been rejected by the U.S. Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia, said Douglas B. McFadden, attorney for 300 Panamanian businesses that filed the lawsuits in Virginia and the district.

He said the businesses probably will appeal both rulings to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The businesses are seeking $110 million from the United States over looting that occurred after the Dec. 20, 1989, invasion.

Report shows Cannon spent $3 million on U.S. Senate campaign

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Republican Joe Cannon has spent more than $3 million on his bid for the U.S. Senate, three times the amount spent by the three other GOP contenders combined.

Financial disclosures received by the Lieutenant Governor's Office on Monday, in compliance with federal election laws, indicate Cannon has spent $3,056 million since entering the race in July 1991.

Republican challenger Bob Bennett has spent $726,957; former U.S. Attorney for Utah Brent Ward has spent $95,049; and Ted Stewart has spent $53,110.

The men are competing for a seat being vacated by three-term Republican Sen. Jake Garn.

The disclosures were submitted in compliance with requirements that candidates for federal office must file financial disclosures 14 days prior to the party's state convention.

The Utah Republican State Convention is scheduled for June 26-27 in Ogden.

Both Cannon and Bennett say they are spending what is necessary to win the race.

"This election is not about who can and who can't spend money but who can best go back to Washington, represent the values of Utah and get things done," said Jim Young, Cannon's campaign manager.

He said Cannon anticipates spending between $5.2 and $5.5 million going into the November general election.

"It's an important seat and the Democrats want it badly," he said. Rep. Wayne Owens, D-Utah, who is also seeking the seat, "has a record of being able to raise large amounts of money."

Owens will face lawyer Doug Anderson in a September primary. Republican State Chair Bruce Hough anticipates a primary for the Republican nomination as well.

Ward and Stewart both complained of the amounts of money being spent by their rivals.

"If Cannon and Bennett are the two who survive the convention, it sends a very profound message to the people in this state that you have to be not a millionaire, but a multimillionaire, to be elected," Stewart said.

The disclosures show Cannon and Bennett have made substantial contributions to their campaigns. Cannon has donated $343,000 and secured $3.5 million in loans. Bennett has contributed $521,000 and secured loans worth $190,000.

David Hansen, state Republican executive director, called the amounts of money being spent on the Senate race "staggering."

"Three million is an amazing amount of money for one candidate, and when you look at what the four candidates are spending together, it's an even more substantial amount," Hansen said. "It's a lot of money going into politics this year, but if you can get it, it's certainly your right to spend it."

Hansen said the amounts spent by Ward and Stewart are more typical for a Senate race.

"But we haven't had this many candidates running before," Hansen said. "It's a very heated, strong race and those candidates felt they needed to spend that in order to win."

Youth Village gets help from Bennett

By KAY C. BROWN
Universe Staff Writer

Republican senatorial candidate Bob Bennett, along with other volunteers, will give one of Utah's success stories a face lift Saturday, doing groundwork and repairs on the homes of Utah Youth Village in South Salt Lake.

Utah Youth Village helps what founder Lila B. Bjorklund calls "terribly abused children." Bjorklund said that through UYV, volunteers try to help the troubled kids in a home-like setting, "showing them the strength of the family unit."

"UYV wants to take the most troubled students in Utah and work with them. ... Education is where we've had the most success," — Lila Bjorklund, founder of Utah Youth Village the Utah Division of Family Science, UYV's program has an 85 percent success rate, based on the number of residents eventually able to return to a less restrictive home. Lewis said the Utah average for placing abused children is only 37 percent.

"Education is where we've had the most success," Bjorklund said. According to UYV statistics, arriving youth have an average of a 0.7 GPA, but that is generally raised to 2.9 during a year in the youth village.

While working with juvenile detention and the juvenile court during the '60s, Bjorklund said she found there were no homes set up for troubled girls, only boys, so in 1969 she founded the Utah Girl's Village.

Now the program serves teens, both male and female, as well as small children.

Aside from Primary Children's Hospital, UYV is the only program in Utah that works with abused children as young as 6 years old.

BYU to gain racks for 400 more bikes

KENDY C. WRIGHT
Staff Writer

There will be 400 additional parking spaces available by Fall Semester for those who ride on two wheels.

Steve Baker, manager of traffic services, said the racks have been ordered to keep up with the increasing number of bicycles that are being ridden on campus. The racks are scheduled to be placed around campus by the end of summer.

The traffic office is responsible for implementing the new bicycle policy that was approved in December of 1990. "We are making a good-faith effort to make the bicycle situation on campus better," Baker said.

One of the objectives of the bicycle policy are the prohibition of bicycle traffic on campus walks during periods of heavy pedestrian use; prohibition of pedestrian traffic on designated bicycle lanes; restrictions for cyclists on campus; upgraded and coordinated bicycle parking facilities; increased traffic enforcement; and continuous publicity and education."

In an effort to continue publicity and education, there is a need to disseminate information to the students about safety, parking, locking and registering their bikes, Baker said. "We welcome and encourage bike use on campus, but we want the students to be informed," he said.

According to the traffic office, one of the main goals is to advertise where the bicycle racks are on campus.

"Our main concern is to just let people know where they are," Baker said. "They may not know that there is another rack just around the next building."

Beginning Fall Semester, there will be maps with bicycle parking information put at various bike racks around campus, Baker said. The maps will be rotated through all bike parking areas.

Baker also noted that bicycle parking information will be displayed on bulletin boards around campus as well as in the traffic office itself.

According to the traffic office, another area that it wants to educate the students about is safety.

The traffic office has coordinated with Provo city on rules and regulations that student bicyclists should be aware of and obey. To disseminate this information, small information cards with the rules, regulations and penalties have been printed and will be distributed to cyclists.

Baker said the traffic office and Provo city have also coordinated on bike routes. City routes are being tied in to routes that come off of BYU's campus.

Locking and registering bicycles is another area that students need to be aware of, Baker said. "Students should register their bikes, mostly to protect themselves," he said.

Students can register their bikes with Provo City at the traffic office.

When a bike is registered with the city, the serial number, the style and other details are put on record. This information can be very useful if a student's bike is stolen, Baker said.

4 ROTC students prepare for Advance Camp

HELEN WINKEL
Staff Writer

Four of 14 BYU Army ROTC cadets, including Robert Lauritzen, are the last thing on their minds this summer.

The cadets completing their third year of the ROTC program are preparing for a six-week Advance Camp training program in Fort Lewis, Wash., beginning this week.

Four ROTC programs from universities along the Mississippi River are participating in the camp, and as many as 25 other cadets will attend.

Robert Lauritzen, a BYU assistant professor of military science, is one of the four cadets.

The idea is to give the cadets an opportunity to show that they understand leadership principles they've studied for the past three years in a near-to-real-world setting.

Lauritzen said the cadets are evaluated from the minute they arrive in Fort Lewis and are rated on a scale from one to five, depending on their performance during the camp. He said the evaluation can determine whether cadets will be placed in the military branch of their choice.

The cadets are given the chance to display their leadership abilities during the program through various exercises, such as planning raids on the "enemy," and patrolling as a squad.

Dave Mellars, 24, a history major from Atlanta, Ga., attended Advance Camp last year and said the camp doesn't focus on menial tasks of the Army; rather, it concentrates on leadership skills. Mellars said each cadet is assigned a platoon, consisting of about 40 other cadets from all over the United States.

He said there is more mental stress involved than physical stress. Skills that enhance courage, leadership and coordination are all part of the camp.

Mellars said one portion of the camp he especially liked was called "Recondo," which stands for reconnaissance commando. In this exercise the cadets participate in courage tests, such as repelling and the "slide for life," which is a 50-foot tower with a rope to slide down.

Cameron Cozzens, 23, a psychology major from Naperville, Ill., is attending Advance Camp this summer. He said the camp is a culmination of everything he's learned in the last three years of ROTC.

"I look at it like taking a final exam," he said.

How good Cozzens' evaluation is at the end of the camp heavily determines what branch of the military he'll be placed in. "This camp decides what my military will be for possibly the next 20 years," he said.

Cozzens said it can be nerve-racking to think about, but added, "I feel confident that ROTC has prepared us well."

POLICE BEAT

By WENDY C. WRIGHT
Universe Staff Writer

Thirteen thefts of property have occurred in the Harold B. Lee Library in the past three weeks. According to police reports, nearly all of the thefts have followed a similar pattern. Police say they have some suspects for the thefts.

According to the reports, the thefts occur when a student leaves his or her belongings unattended for a short time. The student typically returns to find their bag or backpack missing. The backpack is then found in another area of the library, missing cash or other valuables.

The following incidents have all occurred at the HBL within the past three weeks:

- A day timer that contained a checkbook, $20 cash and a Visa card was stolen June 8.

- On June 5, a wallet containing $75 in cash was reported stolen.

- A wallet containing $4 cash, a BYU identification card and a driver license was stolen June 3. A second wallet and a checkbook were also reported missing.

- On June 1 a wallet was stolen that contained $18 cash and a Discover card. A backpack was also stolen and has not yet been recovered.

- Three thefts occurred May 28. Two of the missing bags were recovered with nothing missing. Neither of the bags contained wallets or cash.

- On May 27, four thefts occurred. Stolen items include: $10 cash, a textbook valued at $40 titled "Organizational Behavior," a wallet containing $15 cash and a black backpack containing two textbooks and a checkbook.

Bike Thefts
According to University Police, there has also been an increase in bicycle thefts in the past week.

- Tuesday a silver Raleigh Techium Obsession mountain bike was stolen from a rack south of W Hall. The bike had been secured with a cable lock which was also missing. The bike is valued at $500.

- Also Tuesday, a Specialized Rock Hopper Sport with Sun Tour components was stolen. The purple and yellow mountain bike was locked at a rack on the northwest side of the Thomas L. Martin Building with a cable chain and padlock. The bike is valued at $530.

- A third mountain bike was stolen Tuesday. The Specialized Hard Rock with Sun Tour components, was secured to a rack on the northwest side of the MARB by a cable chain and a padlock. The mountain bike is navy blue and pink and is valued at $350.

- A black Specialized Rock Hopper was stolen from a rack at V Hall on Monday. The $440 bike had been secured to the rack with a cable lock.

- On June 10, a Reflex TWA mountain bike, valued at $1,200, was stolen from a rack southwest of the Abraham O. Smoot Administration Building. The bike is light blue and has Shimano DX components. It was secured to the rack with a cable and a combination lock.

- Also on June 10, most of a Specialized Hard Rock bike was stolen from a rack southwest of the N. Eldon Tanner Building. A U-lock had been used on the front tire only, and only the front tire remained. The bike, valued at $350, is red with black lettering.

Other Thefts
Saturday a lock was broken from a man's locker in the Richards Building. The victim's wallet remained after being emptied of $17.

Also Saturday, a suitcase belonging to an EFY participant was stolen from the lobby of Merrill Hall while the victim was checking out of her room.

On June 10, two Electrophoresis units and one Micro-centrifuge were stolen from the John A. Widtsoe Building. Both of the Electrophoresis units are valued at $250.

Arson
On June 10, University Police responded to a 4 a.m. call that a vehicle in a parking lot west of the Billings Building was on fire. The vehicle, which belonged to BYU motor pool, was a 1990 Ford Van used by KBYU.

After the fire had been extinguished, police found a five-gallon metal gas can, a partially melted cigarette lighter, and a cigarette butt nearby. Police now believe that the fire was deliberate arson, but they have no suspects in the case.

Suspicious Incident
While watching a film for an American Heritage class, a female student noticed that an older male sitting next to her had placed his hand on her upper thigh.

The student had been sitting near the rear of the theater after the film began, when a man sat in the unoccupied seat to her right. Because of the intensity of the film, she did not notice when or how long the man's hand was on her thigh.

Institute promotes research on women's lives

By KATE THURGOOD
Universe Staff Writer

One drawback students may find while attending BYU is that they are not as aware of the campus organizations and clubs as students at smaller colleges are. The Women's Research Institute is an example of a little-known BYU organization.

The institute is a non-profit organization which promotes research and "disseminating information about women and the issues affecting women," according to the BYU organization's newsletter, "Interchange."

Donna Lee Bowen, the associate director of WRI and associate professor of political science, said the aim of the institute is "to facilitate research on women's lives and experiences."

Bowen said faculty and students may apply for WRI grants in order to conduct research on women's lives and issues. The grants are awarded at the beginning of each academic school year.

This year's recipients represent departments throughout campus — from Spanish and Portuguese to physical education and sports — and include research on topics from "Television Viewing and LDS Women" to "Domestic Labor: Inequality, Meaning and Emotion."

One of the present WRI grant recipients is Susan Howe, a professor of English. Howe's research, "The Little Books: Transcribing and Editing the Poetry of Virginia Sorensen," explores the less well-known works of LDS writer Virginia Sorensen.

Howe said when Sorensen came to BYU last year, she brought the "Little Books." These books of poetry were written by Sorensen for her first husband and were given to him on birthdays and anniversaries.

"Some are handwritten in calligraphy and some are typed," Howe said. Sorensen had several artists illustrate the books.

All of Sorensen's poetry is original, she said, and much of the poetry is very good. Howe's aim in doing this research is to make the "Little Books" well known, since Sorensen is mostly known for her children's books and LDS themes.

Because the original books are so delicate, Howe is transcribing them by making selections of the best poetry and compiling the selected poetry into a volume which will eventually be put in the Harold B. Lee Library.

Howe said she thought this would be a good project for WRI to fund because Sorensen is an "important Mormon writer and important to Mormon heritage."

Howe said the Institute tries to give awards to a broad spectrum of disciplines. "There was a lot of competition for the money. ... I feel very fortunate."

In addition to the grants, there are special scholarships available from the institute. One is the Ella Carpenter Jensen Fellowship, which is available to women pursuing graduate studies in any of the departments in the College of Family, Home and Social Sciences.

Another is the Beverly Nalder Scholarship Fund, available to single women who are mothers and either graduate or undergraduate students of the behavioral sciences.

Tracey Sparks, a senior majoring in social work and department secretary for WRI, said there needs to be more "of these benefactors to help women in school or returning to school."

Another function of WRI is to sponsor the Brown Bag Lecture Series, with topics centering on women's studies or gender issues.

The institute is also making plans for sponsoring a conference in October with the Joseph Fielding Smith Institute for Church History titled "The LDS Relief Society and Mormon Women: Cross-disciplinary Considerations."

Since a proposal has been submitted to the university to create a Women's Resource Center on campus, some people have suggested combining the center with WRI.

Bowen said this possibility is only in the discussion stage and as far as WRI is concerned, it makes more sense to keep the two separate.

Howe agreed the research institute could not cover both the academic aspect of research and the counseling aspect of a resource center.

WOMEN

a women's advisory committee to advise the administration on women's issues.

Houston said the way she understood it, the administration wanted to get a bare-bones operation started. She understood they would check into the possibility of having the CDC provide some funds and personnel.

Sorenson said administration officials told the CDC they couldn't give personnel and funds to start a women's resource center for two years and asked if the CDC would be able to help.

"In essence, the CDC answers yes," he said.

For the CDC proposal to take effect, Sorenson said, other campus groups will also have to help, which would also require further administrative approval. "We're hoping that others on campus might contribute some things."

Though the center is named the "Women's Resource Center" in the proposal, Sorenson said the resources would also be available to men.

Sorenson didn't want to name what resources the center would provide because he hopes it will adhere to women's needs and didn't want to limit it.

Kay Franz, the chair of Women in Science, said many women need support in order to stay in school, especially in majors which in the past were predominantly male.

A better Batman Returns

By RICK CARPENTER
Special to The Universe

"Batman Returns," which opens tomorrow, isn't the first megabuck sequel of the summer, but it's certainly the best.

While Warner Brothers wouldn't confirm the exact amount, it's been reported that the sequel took over $55 million to make and extended from a four to six month shoot. It's no surprise. The sets are enormous, the special effects are abundant and the star-studded cast ideal.

Director Tim Burton was incredibly detail oriented while making "Batman Returns." Since the film was set in the winter, Burton insisted that the giant sets be cooled to below freezing so the actors' breath would show when they spoke, how- ever, it isn't that noticeable when watching the movie.

The cold air also facilitated the use of large amounts of real penguin "extras" used in filming the sequences with Danny DeVito, the actor who plays the villainous penguin.

Since in the original Batman, the Joker, played by Jack Nicholson, carried the film, movie buffs worried that DeVito would not follow suit. However, DeVito dazzles in his role as the Penguin. His dark portrayal as an outcast that was discarded by society as an infant because of his deformities is elec- tric.

In some ways, he just want's to be accepted. But at the same time he wants revenge on those respon- sible for his fate, and how he carries out his revenge is the central plot of Batman Returns.

Michelle Pfeiffer plays Catwoman in Batman Returns. The sequel to the 1989 blockbuster opens Friday in 2,500 theatres across the nation.

Batman, played again by Michael Keaton, is of course determined to thwart his evil plans to reign as mayor over Gotham City. Burton equipped Batman with a new and improved Batman costume, to the tune of $100,000 to help him in his efforts.

Behind the Batman/Penguin confrontation is Michelle Pfeiffer's Catwoman. She adds sexual tension to the film that was a hallmark of the 1960s Adam West TV series.

Whether in costume as the cat- woman, or playing the awkward sec- retary Pfeiffer can't repress her feel- ings for Batman, which ultimately adds to her downfall.

Batman Returns brings a darkly dazzling and completely fresh real- ization of Gotham City and its inhabitants to cinematic life, as Batman battles for the soul of his city against his most fiendish opponents yet.

The initial onslaught has all of Gotham asking: who — or what — is The Penguin? A reclusive and strangely deformed creature with a brilliant mind honed on rage and an insatiable need for revenge, The Penguin forms an unlikely alliance with amoral business mogul Shreck that sends Gotham and its residents to their knees in terror. Flanked by an army of loyal penguins prepared to do his most evil bidding and a treacherous band of vandals known as the Red Triangle Circus Gang, The Penguin carries the secret of his origins with him as he embarks on his diabolical plan to destroy Gotham city — and its savior, Batman.

Yet Batman has an even greater to face in the form of the seductively beautiful, yet lethally dangerous Catwoman. Catwoman, whose own existence, like Batman's sprang out of tragedy, is a stunning combatant who confronts Batman with a fierce energy, a scathing wit — and a secret he must discover before he falls under her spell forever. As Catwoman's slashing, slithering whip curls around Batman's shoulders and flings him to the floor, the humbled — but tantalized — Dark Knight wonders for the hundredth time...where has he met this amaz- ing woman before?

Director Burton once again mines the rich legend of Batman to present a caroming funhouse ride through the imagination, a dizzying glimpse into a dark urban future, and an exploration of a romantic attraction as mysterious as it is powerful, in "Bat- man Returns."

Homestead offers a variety of summer activities

By LORI LANEY
Universe Staff Writer

Many Utahns, especially the transient student population, find it easy to miss out on some of the state's more respectable recreation spots. Like the one nestled in the cottonwoods of Midway, only 30 minutes from Provo: the Homestead. This isolated resort is a nice escape from the pressures of BYU.

The Homestead offers a wide range of summer activities at an affordable price. Some of the summer activities include horseback riding, swimming, tennis, an 18-hole golf course, fine dining, mountain climbing, hay and buggy rides, lawn games and soaking in the natural hot springs.

Most of our facilities are open to the public," said

Tom Wallace, banquet-convention director at the Homestead. "However, swimming, tennis and the lawn games are amenities for the guests lodging with us."

The history of the Homestead began in 1886, when Swiss-born Simon Schneiter began farming the acres that the Homestead lies on. Schneiter had trouble farming the land due to the mineral debris and warm water that came from the "hot pot," a natural spring that has the appearance of a mini-volcano, located in the middle of his farm. Schneiter finally gave up on farming and built a board-enclosed pool, piped it full of the water from the hot pot and opened the area's first resort.

The hot pot continues to be one of the attractions of the Homestead and is resourcefully used by the resort. Myrna Bruehl, the Homestead's public relations manager, said the water is piped to the mineral bath and ponds and is also used to run some of the air-conditioning and heat.

Lisa Morgan, 20, a sophomore majoring in sociology from Orange, Calif., stayed at the Homestead for a family reunion. "I thought the Homestead was a really nice country resort," Morgan said, "I enjoyed soaking in the mineral pool."

"Many BYU students come to enjoy our facilities, such as the 18-hole golf course," said Bruehl. The Homestead offers a variety of different packages at different times of the year. "Our downhill ski, cross country ski and golf packages are offered year round," said Bruce Riddle, a Homestead reservationist. "During the off seasons we put together other packages such as a romance package, but they are only offered for a limited time."

Book makes dating easy

By KARLA CINTRA
Universe Staff Writer

Have you ever wished you had a book that listed the addresses and phone numbers of places you could go for a fun date?

If so, Todd Huisken's new booklet, "The Dating Directory," could be the answer.

Huisken, 23, a senior majoring in psychology from Huntington Beach, Calif., set up his booklet like a phone book. It lists places by topics ranging from dancing and bowling to skydiving and hot air ballooning.

"I decided to put this book together because I was tired of calling information or going to the library to get a Lake phone number," Huisken said.

"I did it mostly for myself...but I figured my friends would like to have it so I decided to publish it," he said.

Huisken explained he had two goals in mind when he wrote the booklet. The first one was to help people who were not from Utah to find out about things to do while they are in town.

The second goal of the booklet was to make it convenient for people from Utah to get information on places they have heard about and want to go.

Huisken said he was mostly influ- enced to write this booklet by his father, who also writes books. His father, who likes to do original things, had a big influence on the work. Huisken said he plans to expand the booklet this summer. "I want to rate places and find out how much it costs to go there."

The booklet is selling at the book- store for $3.

Workshop helps writers

By JENNIFER ROMNEY
Universe Staff Writer

BYU students interested in writing can gain knowledge and experience at the annual Writers at Work conference in Park City, Utah, June 21-26.

According to a press release, the Yarrow Hotel will host workshops, lectures, panel discussions and readings that students can attend throughout the week.

The conference expects to see as many as 200 writers, both published and unpublished, along with experienced editors and agents. "Students who register for workshops... have the opportunity to meet in a private discussion of their writing with a visiting agent, editor or writer," said the press release.

Bruce Jorgensen, former member of the board for Writers at Work and present head of creative writing sections at BYU, said the conference allows established writers and editors to see your work. "It is a week full of discussions, writing and reading, where a writer can find out what an editor thinks," he said.

Jorgensen said the conference is fun and instructive on how novelists do their work. "You can get a sense of how they think and learn; how a writer writes and rewrites," he said.

Every afternoon and evening during the week of the conference, the public is invited to meet and hear local and visiting writers read from their works in progress, said a press re- lease.

BUYING "WHOLESALE" IS TOO COSTLY A PRICE TO PAY.

"Psst! Buddy! Have I got a deal for you!"

There's a lasting difference between buying smart and "buying cheap". Wholesale used to mean paying less than retail. Now it's most often used simply as an advertising ploy. The "wholesale" jeweler with "international contacts" normally has only a few customers per week, and therefore, far less buying power than Wilsons. Quite often we have people who have bought from a "wholesaler" come to us frustrated, trying to get a problem fixed. In the process they embarrassingly find out their "wholesale bargain" is worth far less than they'd been told. Using our simple gemological equipment they've been able to see flaws and poor workmanship they were never shown before. So, come to Wilsons first. Then compare if you want. With our guaranteed prices on quality diamonds and rings, you'll still save money without having to give up certified appraisals, lifelong service, and "peace of mind". Remember, the bitterness of poor quality lingers long after the brief sweetness of a cheap price is forgotten.

Women's track scores best GPA

By LISA D. WALKER
Universe Sports Writer

BYU's women's track team had the highest athletic and academic placement of all the Cougar women's sports squads this season.

The tracksters, who placed seventh at the NCAA championships, tallied a 3.18 cumulative grade point average through the 1992 winter semester.

"It's an expectancy. They know that what they put in the classroom is what they're going to get when they leave here, and they're very competitive people," said women's track coach Craig Poole.

"So many people are talking and writing about athletes getting academic favors and slipping by. I wish they would just limit it to football and basketball and get off everyone else's backs. We have a higher graduation rate and a higher average GPA than the rest of the student body. A lot of that must be credited to the great support service under Jim Kimmel," Poole said.

Kimmel heads the athletic academic advisement center that coordinates study hall and tutoring services for the athletes.

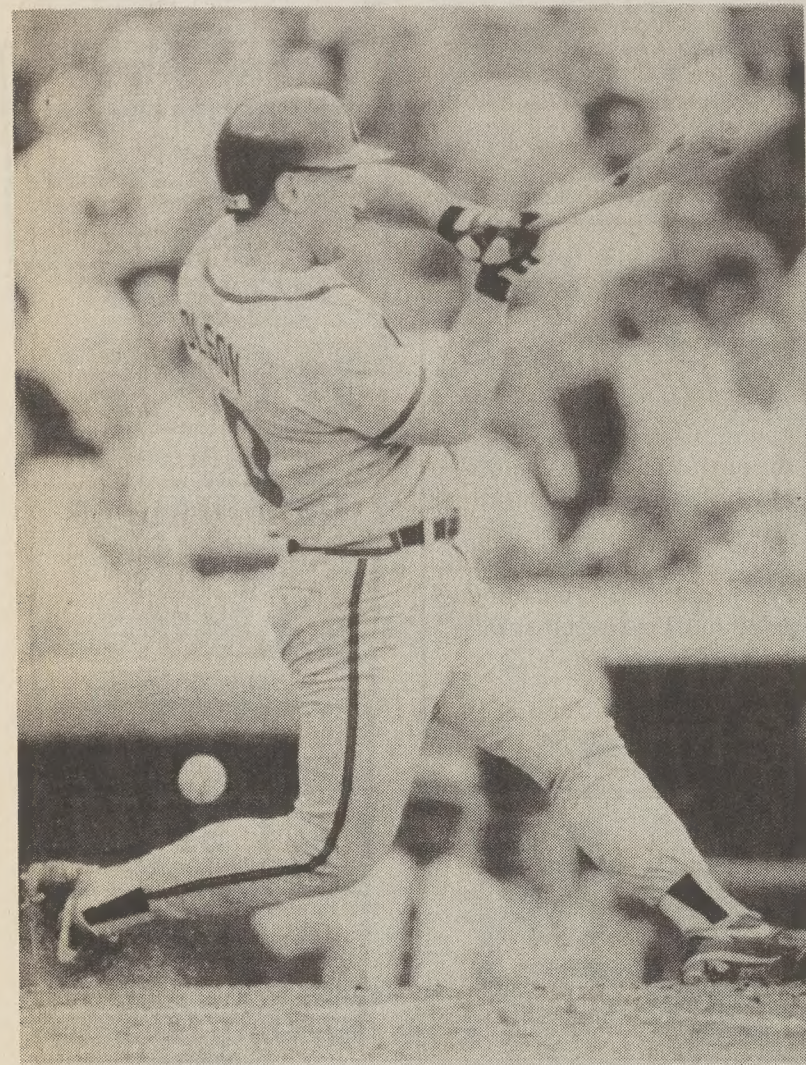

"Our coach is always looking out for us and so does Jim Kimmel. If we don't get a 3.0, someone speaks with us," said Jennifer Swan, a sophomore from Abbotsford, British Columbia, who runs the 800-meters for BYU.

Swan said that although athletic highs are important, academics are stressed.

Because of the time consumed by practices and events, she said it often is very difficult to manage but that the athletes who want to will "pull through". Other women's teams performed well in the classroom.

The volleyball squad amassed an impressive 3.11 cumulative, while the tennis team came next in line with 3.04. The combined cumulative GPA for all of the women's teams is 2.95 — better than a B-minus average.

Atlanta Braves Greg Olson chops a foul ball that bounced back, hitting the catcher in the derriere, in the ninth inning June 11 against the Los Angeles Dodgers at Dodger Stadium. Braves won 2-1.

Orem 24-hour relay expected to raise funds for cancer research on Friday

By LISA D. WALKER
Universe Sports Writer

The first northern Utah 24-Hour Relay Against Cancer, a fund-raiser for the American Cancer Society, will take place in Orem Friday night.

"Although we send a certain amount in, basically, the money remains in Utah, and since we're sponsoring the event, specifically in Utah County. We receive so much more from the ACS than we put in; if we send in $500,000, we have over $1.4 million in grants and things going on here," said Mike Jensen of the ACS unit in Provo.

Gordon Klatt, the Tacoma colon surgeon who founded the 24-Hour Relay, will help kick off the run at the Mountain View High School track.

When Klatt initiated the 24-hour relay in 1985, he did it by himself and raised over $27,000. Since then, millions of dollars for cancer education, research and patient services have been raised from relays held in 25 states and in Canada.

Organizers hope that some families will use the Father's Day weekend as added incentive to get together and join in the event.

More than 20 Utah Valley teams have already signed up to participate, but more teams are needed, Jensen said.

"We need as many teams as we can get. We have people who have formed work teams, hospital teams, high school teams, and the Orem Police Department has put together a team too."

Team members raise funds by obtaining sponsors from corporations, friends, relatives or fellow workers, and then participating by walking, jogging or running for the 24 hours.

"We're hoping to raise $1,000 per team. We're not stressing the 'money, money, money' aspect. We would like people to come out and have a good time, especially since this is the first relay," Jensen said.

If volleyball, poker, croquet and pizza delivered by hospital administration can qualify as a good time, the two teams from Utah Valley Regional Medical Center will be meeting Jensen's expectations.

"One of our teams is a nursing team, completely made of nurses from the seventh floor. They deal mostly with cancer patients. The other team is from the radiation department, and we do the out-patient radiation therapy. That's the team I'm on," said chairman Bob Elton of Lindon.

Elton said he became involved because his 10 years of performing cancer therapy in the radiation center gave him a close affiliation with the ACS.

"I experienced many of the beneficial things done by ACS. I started out just as a hospital representative, but they didn't have enough people," said Elton.

Elton emphasized that anyone can come to participate in the midnight candlelight memorial.

The candles, which can be purchased for a dollar each, will be lit and placed around the track in bags with the names of cancer victims on them. The 24-hour relay will begin at 6 p.m. on June 19 at the Mountain View High School track in Orem. Information and registration materials can be obtained at the Utah County unit of the American Cancer Society in Provo.

Snowbird to host wall climb event

By GEORGE R. WRIGHT
Universe Sports Writer

Local climbers have two chances to see who comes out on top on the Snowbird Climbing Wall.

The first chance will be Saturday June 20 on Snowbird's 130-foot artificial wall on the west side of the Cliff Lodge. The second will be in the same location at the same time but two months later, August 22.

This is the second year that Snowbird has sponsored a local climbing competition. There will be different competitions for men and women. The climb will begin at 8 a.m. and will cost $20 for the climbers but will be free of charge for all spectators. The prizes will be donated gifts from local businesses.

The course was built six years ago for the world cup climbing competition. There are courses for all levels of climbers including a challenging 20-foot overhang for the advanced climbers.

The wall has several courses that range from beginner to professional climbing. The beginners will be challenged with a steep climb with large hand holds spaced approximately six inches apart. The hand holds get smaller and further apart with the intermediate and advanced classes until the climbers literally have to leap to get their hand holds in the open class.

"Climbing is really a physical sport, you need to use your fingers, toes, arms, stomach and all sorts of other muscles that you don't know you have," said Safia Marcus, events manager for Snowbird.

Climbers will be judged on the time and the height they are able to achieve.

Braves, Reds play for 1st in division

Associated Press

ATLANTA — The two hottest teams in baseball are ready for their four-game NL West showdown — first-place Cincinnati vs. second-place Atlanta beginning Thursday.

While the Reds held a four-game lead over the Braves before Atlanta's Wednesday night game against the Los Angeles Dodgers, neither team was willing to call the first-place battle a must-win series.

"Many people were saying it looked like it would be a race between Cincinnati and Atlanta, and it looks like they were right. I don't view it as a crucial series, but it should be interesting baseball."

—John Schuerholz
Braves general manager

Schuerholz said, "I don't view it as a crucial series, but it should be interesting baseball."

More than 200,000 fans are expected at the four games, with all three weekend games sold out by Tuesday.

The Reds have a six-game winning streak after Wednesday's 6-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants and have won 18 of their last 22.

The Braves, defending NL champions, had won six in a row and 15 of 17. "You get the feeling when you're playing like we are that everybody had better stay ready because we can break it open at any time," said Reds reliever Norm Charlton.

"Both teams have been getting good pitching lately, and both of us have been scoring runs," Atlanta outfielder Ron Gant said. "It's an evenly matched series."

When the clubs met earlier in Cincinnati, the Reds swept the three-game series.

"They shouldn't be lacking any confidence since they beat us three in a row, but we're a better club now and we've got some confidence, too,"

Braves third baseman Terry Pendleton said. "I think the fans will love it."

"I don't think it's any bigger than playing Los Angeles or anybody else," Braves manager Bobby Cox said. "You find that you're looking for trouble if you look ahead."

A sweep by the Reds could be devastating, but "I don't even think about that," he said.

The pitching matchups will pit Cincinnati's Tim Lincecum (6-6) vs. John Smoltz (7-5) Thursday night; Greg Swindell (6-2) vs. Atlanta's Charlie Leibrandt (6-2) Friday night; and Tom Browning (5-4) vs. Steve Avery (5-5) Saturday night.

Jose Rijo (2-5) opposes Mike Bielecki (1-3) on Sunday.

"They're the NL champs. They're starting to hit their stride now," Cincinnati's Bip Roberts said. "If we don't win the division, they'll be the team to beat."

Shark takes a bite of fisherman's boat

Associated Press

OKYO — A 16-foot shark left teeth and more than 30 gashes in a small boat Wednesday, but a 71-year-old fisherman drove off the attacker by whacking it on the nose with a stick.

When I suddenly noticed a shark coming my mouth, I thought I was going to die and tried all means to escape it," Yoshiaki Ueda said in a televised interview.

Yoshiaki Iefuji, an official in the Japanese state government in western Japan, said a fishing cooperative reported that two shark's teeth, each 2 inches long, were found on the bottom of Ueda's 16-foot boat.

The shark rammed the boat several times, and Ueda, who was alone, hit the shark's nose several times with a long stick before it finally dove into the sea, Iefuji said.

The attack occurred near the area where a 41-year-old diver apparently was killed by a shark on March 8.

Diver Kazuto Harada screamed for help, and when his boat crew pulled up his line, they retrieved only Harada's helmet and orange and gray diving suit, which had enormous jagged holes in the upper part.

After Harada's disappearance, the local government warned fishermen to beware of sharks, Iefuji said.

Pros guess who will win U.S. Open

Associated Press

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson, who share so much of the history of the U.S. Open and the demanding Pebble Beach Golf Links, are looking to add another chapter to their story of their careers.

Nicklaus and Watson, U.S. Open winners here in 1972 and 1982 agreed on one point:

Experience counts and, quite possibly more here and at this time than at any other Open in recent memory.

The reason? The golf course will severely penalize poor play.

The fairways have been narrowed to 30 yard strips snaking through intimidating rough. The greens are small and hard, and are surrounded by rough.

"It's about the same, as far as difficulty is concerned, as '72," said Nicklaus, who won his third U.S. Open that year, shooting a final round 74 for a 2-over-par 290 total.

It is, he said, "much more difficult than '82," when Watson snatched from his grasp a fifth U.S. Open.

"I think the golf course this week will produce a winner who is someone with a lot of experience," the 52-year-old Nicklaus said.

He provided a short list of possibilities, a list loaded with veterans: Ray Floyd, Steve Ballesteros, current British Open champ Ian Baker-Finch, Nick Faldo, defending champion Payne Stewart and Mark O'Meara.

He later named Fred Couples, who capped a 10-month success string with a victory in the Masters.

While Watson, 42, has not won in five years, he agreed he could have a chance in the 156-man field chasing a $1.5 million purse with $275,000 to the winner.

"I still feel capable of winning the golf tournament. I honestly feel this could be a good week for me. I'm not predicting anything, but I have a good feeling about the week," he said.

He agreed that the competition will be from the more experienced players, but his list of those most likely to succeed was remarkably different from that of Nicklaus.

"There are certain shots that if you haven't had the experience playing them here, you're going to guess wrong and you're going to pay the penalty for guessing wrong."

He listed two dark-horse candidates, Mark Brooks and Jay Haas, a winner last week at Memphis.

Celebrities to play golf and tennis to help disabled

By DAVID ANDREASEN
Universe Sports Writer

Kate Jackson heads the list of celebrities that will participate in the sixth annual "Swing Into Summer at Park Meadows" golf and tennis tournaments.

The event, which is being presented by Panasonic, is a fund-raiser for the Park City Handicapped Sports Association.

The association provides year-round sports and recreational programs for the mentally and physically challenged.

The golf tournament will be Friday beginning at 1:30 p.m. at the Park Meadows Golf Club. The tennis tournament will follow on Saturday June 20 at the Park City Racquet Club from 9:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Teams will consist of a celebrity, a disabled participant and two others. Other personalities at the event include Hot Rod Hundly, Randal Carlisle and Lt. Gov. Val Oveson.

In addition to the golf and tennis, there will also be a dinner party on Friday evening at the Yarrow.

Entertainment for the evening will be provided by comedienne Geri Jewell and the musical group No Breaks.

BYU women's track team member Anna Mosdell throws the discus during one of last year's track meets. Mosdell, NCAA's discus champion, is a hopeful member of Canadian Olympic team.

Olympic track coaches consider Y's Mosdell

By LISA D. WALKER
Universe Sports Writer

Canadian Olympic track and field coaches are counting the hours until one of their most promising hopefuls returns to the great north for the team trials this week.

BYU's Anna Mosdell, from Richmond, British Columbia, claimed her title as the NCAA's best women's discus competitor for the second consecutive year in the NCAA championships in Austin, Texas.

Mosdell thinks many people have a false perception of what 'throwing' entails. "It's not heavy. People just think that if you're big, you can go out and throw it. It's hard and it takes a long time to actually get the technique down."

"If you look at the chicks who are really good, like at UCLA, they're solid, not big. It (discus) takes a lot of technique and a lot of coordination," Mosdell said.

At a striking 6 foot 1 inches, Mosdell's track career proves that it's the thrower's way, not their weight, that indicates how far the discus will go. Mosdell's personal best is 183'10" that she threw at the 1991 finals, but she won in Austin with a throw of 179'9".

"It was so hot there, it was kind of gross, and it affected everyone. My first three throws weren't so good, and then in my fourth and fifth throw, it just happened. It was a surprise more than anything," Mosdell said about her championship performance.

Mosdell is looking forward to returning to Canada for the Olympic trials that will take place this week, and it's not a mystery to say that a repeating NCAA champion will be a welcome addition to the Canucks national team.

The Suns make 76ers' Barkley

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Charles Barkley's stormy and stellar career with the 76ers ended Wednesday with a trade that will send the six Suns' Jeff Hornacek, Tim Lincecum and Andrew Lang to Philadelphia. The announcement in Philadelphia came within hours of the Suns' acquittal on battery and other charges in Milwaukee. As he left for home, the forward said he had not heard the trade news, but learned of the transaction while at the airport.

"I just want this trade stuff to be done one way or the other so I can concentrate on basketball," he said.

"I'm a little nervous. I'm not sure if I'm not to sit back and see how it works out," Barkley said. "In shock? I just don't know how I feel. I don't know if I'm happy or sad. I have to pick up my stuff and move them across the country. It's been a great eight years in Philadelphia and now I play for Phoenix. Whatever happens I will live with it."

Lynam, the 76ers general manager, said he thinks Philadelphia's players will fit better with new coach Doug Moe, known for his no-nonsense style.

The Suns are extremely happy to acquire these three players. We feel we will mesh tremendously in the Moe system," Lynam said.

Hornacek, 29, led the Suns in scoring (20.1 points) and steals (1.9) in 81 games last season. The 6-foot-4-inch forward ranked third in the NBA in 3-point shooting (43 percent) in hitting 189. Perry, 27, averaged 12.3 points and 6.9 rebounds, and Lang, 29, averaged 7.7 points and 6.7 rebounds.

This team was in a position to end up with one of the top basketball players in the world," Phoenix president of basketball Colangelo said. "This adds to the things we've needed for a long time. When you're talking physical presence on the court, leadership on the court, it is there."

Barkley started the season by accusing the 76ers of racism in roster decisions. In December, he was traded with punching a heckler in Milwaukee. He severely criticized teammates in a book, and in a letter he called general manager Gene Shott a "clown" and a "caddy" for coach Harold Katz.

At the end of the spring, he said the best way to end the team win an NBA championship was to play elsewhere and he traded to Phoenix among his top five choices for a trade. Barkley, 29, averaged 23.1 points and 11.1 rebounds a game this season, and appeared in his first straight All-Star game.

According to reports, the 76ers, facing a trade difficult because of the $3.2 million annual salary, had planned to keep the forward this season if they had won a top-three draft pick. The team came out of the draft. The Suns managed to squeeze in under the $14 million salary cap by cutting guard Steve Burt and forward Ian Lockhart.

BYU tries to land major concerts

By L. M. ROBBINS

It seems as though fate is conspiring to keep big concerts out of the Marriott Center, but money and location are the major culprits. Students, administration and BYUSA are battling recession, red tape and strange schedules to help bring back the big shows.

Several BYU organizations are coordinating efforts to attract concerts. Some of the people on the front lines include Paul Duerden, concert manager for the University Concert Committee, which sponsors performance series in the Harris Fine Arts Center; Larry Duffin, director of Special Events and Marriott Center Concerts; Tom Kallunki and Nancy Harris, Student Leadership Development, who helped the Wilkinson Center independently sponsor some medium-sized concerts in the ELWC Ballroom; Michael Johnson, 22, a junior majoring in finance from Ridgecrest, Calif. and chair of the BYUSA Music and Concert Committee.

The Big Picture

What has happened since 1989's B-52's concert? First, there's the big picture. "The main reason we haven't had concerts is because they're losing money because of the recession," Johnson said.

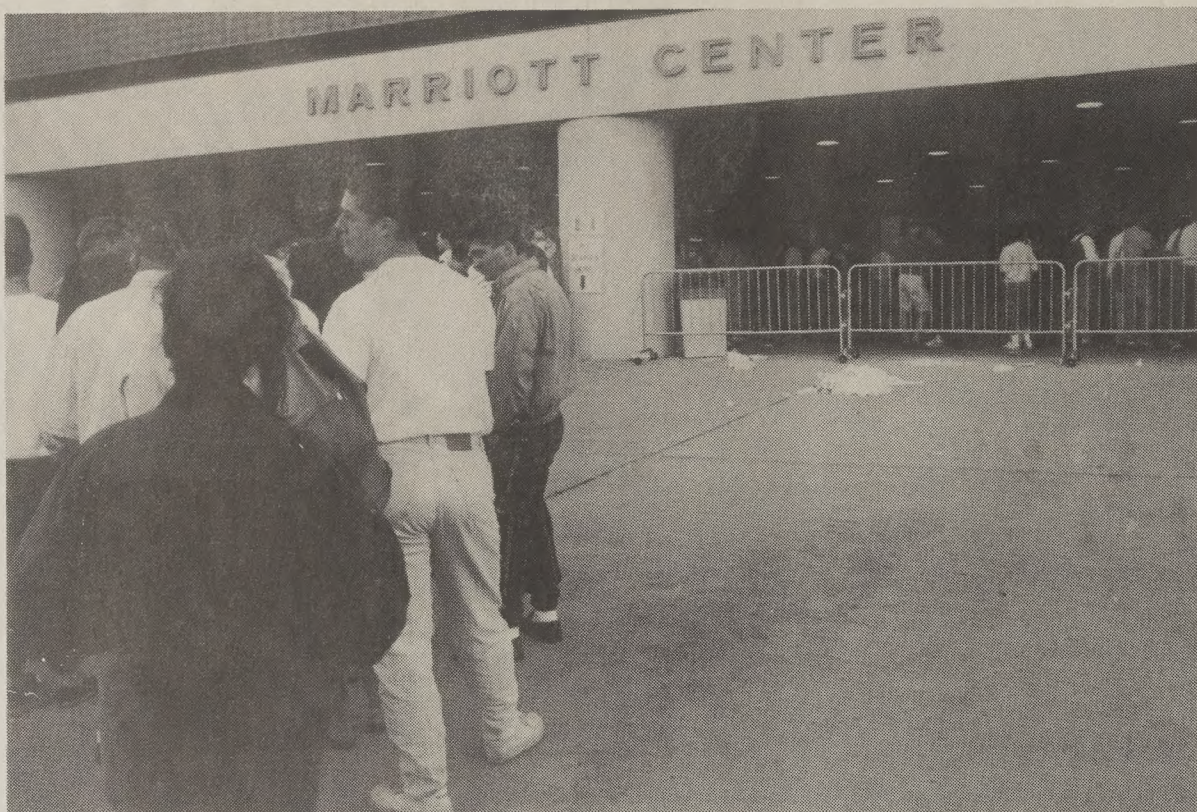

"Concert groups on tour are more selective as to where and when they play because it is so expensive," Duffin said. "Tours used to be extremely common. But now when they do play, they usually do several performances in a large market such as Chicago or Los Angeles. This helps them cut costs and reduce their risks," he said.

Economics is keeping groups off the road and in the studio.

Delta Delta Delta

All of the committees agree the main factor keeping concerts out of the Marriott Center is competition from the Delta Center.

"The Marriott Center used to be the biggest arena in Utah, and the Salt Palace was old and run down and didn't seat nearly as many people, so people would instantly think 'Utah: The Marriott Center.' ... They don't think that anymore,"

Johnson said.

"Salt Lake City is a secondary market, and to major acts, Provo is less than a secondary market. The Delta Center is almost as large as the Marriott Center and is located in a bigger town," Duffin said.

Duerden agreed. "When they go out, they want to hit the metropolitan areas, and Provo is not a metropolitan area."

Space for Rent

Attracting concerts is not really one of the Marriott Center's primary functions.

The Marriott Center is in the business of simply renting space, Kallunki said. "The big thing right now is that there's no real push for the Marriott Center to get in [the concert] business because they're able to rent the building at least sufficiently to make it worth their while with sports and athletics and dance teams."

Kallunki pointed to the Afterglow concert as an example of what BYU ideally looks for in a concert.

Too Big or Too Small

BYUSA Music and Concert Committee Chair Michael Johnson explained that, for many bands, BYU doesn't provide the right-sized venue.

Larry Duffin said BYU is looking for a quality act that will attract a moderate-sized audience. "We are not looking for only 'home-run' success concerts. Smaller acts would do well here too."

Performers don't just come for free. Music is a business like any other, with a lot of money and a lot of risk.

Johnson said the cost of concerts includes appearance fees — what the promoter pays the performer just to show up — from $2,000 to $200,000 for stage and equipment set-up, crew and security staff, hotel and lodging for performers and bands. "So concerts would, if they come in, be between $20 and $30 for a ticket,"

Johnson said.

One of BYU's best assets is the constant level of student enthusiasm, Johnson said.

"We keep constantly calling the Marriott Center and telling them that interest is still high, and they know that because they get the same thing we do. We get several calls a week asking for Amy Grant or any concert. They know that the students are wanting a concert, and they know that the Student Service Association wants to help them in any way possible to help see a concert come in to the Marriott Center."

Only at BYU

When trying to schedule any activity here, sponsors will run into those problems which are uniquely common to BYU. Standards, the Sabbath and Family Home Evening complicate matters for concert schedulers.

Because of standards "the types of groups who can play at BYU include a narrow slice of the available tours," Duffin said.

State school board member to be Cook's running mate

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Independent gubernatorial candidate Merrill Cook has named state school board member Frances Hatch Merrill as his lieutenant governor running mate.

With his announcement Wednesday, Cook became the third gubernatorial candidate to select a running mate and also the third to choose a woman.

Democratic hopefuls Pat Shea and Stewart Hanson Jr. are sharing tickets with Bobbie Coray, Cache County economic development director, and state Rep. Paula Julander, respectively.

In naming his choice, Cook described Merrill as a "fighter for the causes in which she believes."

"As an elected member of the Utah State Board of Education, she knows we can improve education dramatically without raising taxes," he said.

MERRILL COOK

"Frances knows government, she's an excellent campaigner, she stands by her convictions and she'll be a great lieutenant governor."

Merrill, a sister of Republican Sen. Orrin Hatch, has also served as Salt Lake County Republican Party chair and was a state representative from 1982-86.

Cook, a former Republican who left the party several years ago and helped found the Independent Party of Utah, said his choice of Merrill shows he wants "the best person regardless of political party" and would include Republicans, Democrats and Independents in a Cook administration.

Merrill said Cook's five-point plan for education was her primary reason for accepting his offer, but she also supports his tax limitation ideas and proposed health care reforms.

She also used the opportunity to criticize "those in power" who she believes are forcing her off the Board of Education through redistricting.
